Howard Holland, one of the most enthusiastic base-ball players in the country, and one of the best right fielders in the business, is back home from a winter season with the Oakland California, club, of the Independent League.

Holland has figured in many of the minor leagues. Last season he was with the Memphis team, of the Southern League, He played with Richmond and Norfolk in the Atlantic League, and has always held his own. He started his base-ball career with the McCabe club in Richmond, and was then considered one of the best all-round college players in the State. His coaching is a feature of any game he plays in.

He would have continued with the Oakland club, but he caught cold in his throwing arm, and had to lay off a few weeks. His arm is now in good shape, and Holland will remain at home this season, playing with Donati's Dandles in the Tri-City League, His many friends and admirers gave him the glad hand.

WARD REGISTRATION.

Votors in the Third Ward are urged to go to the proper places this week and register, so that at the coming election a full vote may be poiled.

The June election will prove an important one, and all voters are expected to go to the poils.

PERSONALS AND NOTES.

After a week's visit to friends in Swansboro Mr. and Mrs. Jumes Raines have returned to their home in Palmyra.

Squire L. W. Cheatham's young daughter continues ill.

The heavy rain Sunday night interfered very little with the attendance upon the services at the churches, and good sermons were enjoyed by those who formed the congregations.

The little Grace Street boys of Richmond defeated the Forest Hill boys in a game of ball on Saturday by the score of 14 to 7.

Oh, the snow, the beautiful snow,
Filling the sky and the earth below;

Over the housetop, over the street.

Over the heads of the people you meet.

Dancing,

PETERSBURG, VA., May 25.—Captain E. A. Goodwyn, one of Petersburg's cidest and most honored citizens, died last night. For some time past his health had been very feeble, as the result of heart troubls.

Captain Goodwyn had but recently passed his eightleth birthday. He was born in Dinwiddle county and was the grandson of Colonel Peterson Goodwyn, who represented this district in Congress in the early part of the last century. When a young man Captain Goodwyn represented Dinwiddle county in the Legislature. He became a citizen of Petersburg in the early fifties.

Captain Goodwyn was connected in many important capacities with the Norfolk and Western Railway and its pradecessor conpanies—the Southside and the Atlantic, Mississippi and Ohio—for over fifty years, at times filling the positions of superintendent and master of transportation of the old Southside Railway. For many years he was a member, and for some time president, of the Common Council of Petersburg.

In the spring of 1881 he went to Norfolk as an officer in the Petersburg Cavalry, of which Christopher F. Fisher was enptain. In 1882 he organized another cavalry company and went to the front, serving gallantly in the field until ill-health compelled his resignation, after which he returned to Petersburg.

At the time of his death Captain Goodwyn was first lieutenant-commander of A. P. Hill Camp of Confederate Veterans, of which he had long been an active and efficient member.

Captain Goodwyn is survived by his wife. He was a man of genial manners, of high character and greatly respected in the community.

The Old Veteran's Dream.

(For The Times-Dispatch.)
We are thinking and dreaming, as the years go by,
Of the days that are past and gone;
Of strong young manhood in the long ago,
Of a time that can never return. We are standing again where Lee's lines

We are standing appears stood,
stood,
With the chieftain we loved so well;
Where we hared our breasts to the storm
of war,
And our peerless heroes fell. Once more we hear the cannon booming
And the muskets fiercely rattie,
And the deafening roar of the bursting shells,
As we fight over again the battle.

Again we are listening to the "rebel yell."
We stop and hold our breath,
For our lines are charging over the field
To victory or—to death?

Yes, we are living those stormy days over,
As plain as anything can be;
We are fighting our battles all

And marching again with Lee. The cause we loved is only a memory now, We can scarcely realize it's so; We drop a tear, and still dream of For we are living in the days lo

Thinking and dreaming, as the days go on, We shall dream on to the end; When a few more years have come and gone, The dream will be finished then.

We are dreaming of the last surviving hero, For it must come to that at last; When only a solitary veteran is left, To dream on alone of the past.

Although surrounded by loving friends, Still he will be alone; Alone, to dream his life away. When all his old comrades are gone.

There'll be none to whom he can tell fils thoughts.

They are all of the buried past;
They'd sound like the mutterings of scale are.

ro a world that is moving fast. He can tell his dreams to no one, then,
For none will be left to know;
There'll be no one, then, to understand,
When the army has crossed to the other shore.

Point Well Taken.

The railroad strike in Victoria, a State of Australia, is an object of present interest, because the railroads there are owned and operated by the State government. The Dutch government a few weeks ago met a strike of this sort with severe legislation, which is not possible in Australia. If strikes cannot be banished from railroads owned by the government, the argument for State ownership is perceptibly weakened.—Portland Oregonian. Oregonian.
